Databases in Comics

After the events in Stamford, CT in the Marvel Universe heroes went to war with each other over a system called the Superhuman Registration Act. This act would require that every hero be registered, and have their powers catalogued, rated and ranked.

By themselves, this data is a series of numbers: 12, 7, 20, 1; and meaningless words: empath, Omega, mutant. But when put in the context of the Database they become information used to decipher exactly what kind of superhuman is being catalogued.
